Exhibition of work by Etheldreda Laing and students of the Oxford Brookes School of Architecture

15 February – 2 March 2019. Bury Knowle Library, North Place, Oxford, OX3 9HY

Etheldreda Janet Laing (1872-1960) was a pioneer of colour photography who lived and worked at Bury Knowle House from 1899 to 1923.

From 1908, Laing photographed her daughters, Janet and Iris, in Bury Knowle's garden and house using the newly-invented Autochrome colour process. Her original photographic plates form part of the Science Museum's collection.
